Dear SAR members & friends,

The situation in Afghanistan continues to be extremely volatile, posing an ongoing threat to the lives and livelihoods of scholars and students in the region. As we enter a new phase of this crisis, SAR remains committed to supporting at-risk Afghans, while working tirelessly to stabilize their situation. This includes, but is not limited to, working to ensure that all Afghans have the information and resources they need to protect themselves and their loved ones. We are so grateful to the many institutions, leaders, administrators, faculty, and staff that have contributed to our field operations in the region. Their efforts have helped us to identify and prioritize candidates who may be eligible for SAR assistance.

As noted above, SAR also maintains an online platform where scholars and students can check their eligibility for assistance. This platform is available at: https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/afghan-relocations-and-assistance-laws-and-guidance. For more information on how to apply for assistance, please visit the SAR website at: https://www.sar.org.au.

We are encouraged by the willingness of the military, government, and non-government organizations to help us meet the needs of those in Afghanistan. We are also grateful to the leaders, donors, and organizations that have supported our efforts in the region.

We are so grateful to the many institutions, leaders, administrators, faculty, and staff that have contributed to our field operations in the region. Their efforts have helped us to identify and prioritize candidates who may be eligible for SAR assistance.

Thank you for all you are doing,

Sincerely,

SAR Team
